CELIA MEADORS

"I like old faces. I like to do wrinkles."

Celia Meadors is an artist with roots in Amarillo, Texas, whose oil portraits of Santa Claus begin with the face, not the costume. Her Santas carry the particulars of real people: weathered skin, ruddy cheeks, the lines a lifetime leaves around the eyes.

Her first Santa came in 1990: a commissioned four-by-six-foot painting on a drop cloth for the Christmas Roundup gala. It sold at auction for more than anything she had sold before. She has since painted more than 100 oil portraits of Santa and adds a new one every year.
